Tickers Cease.
Money and Gold.
He Was Bone Dry.
By Arthur Brisbane

THIS GOES THE NEWS-
In honor of Good Friday the tickers cease from twirling—Wall Street is closed until next week.

Before Thursday's close a merger of the New York Chemical Bank and the U. S. Mortgage & Trust Co. was announced. Four hundred million dollars in the combination was a $12,000,000 melon for stock owners.

German stocks have a boom. Berlin believes a revision of the Dawes plan will benefit all Germany.

Britain increases gold reserves. And France has an amount of gold that beats all records.

In France speculators borrow at 4 per cent in Britain at 5 1/2. In "prosperous" America, men borrow at 10, 15 and 20 per cent.

They have no Federal Reserve Bank over there, no financial super-power managed to stimulate usury and milk the public.

A Senator named Glass wants to investigate the City National Bank because its president, C. E. Mitchell, acted to avert a panic at the Federal J. P. Morgan did occasionally.

The credit congressman probably thinks a panic would help.

A congressman of Chicago was re-elected last fall as bone dry. Now for liquor smuggling he may be jailed two years, fined $5000. Man in this life plays many parts, but a bone dry candidate on election day smuggling liquor between elections would shock the country's moral sense. If it were not shocked into insensibility already.

The congressman, M. A. Mitchell, for whom a warrant is issued following indictment, has always been supported by the Illinois Anti-Saloon League. Prohibition ceases to be a joke, if you arrest a bone dry congressman merely because his value leaks on the Jacksonville, Fla., station platform. He was supposed to Mr. Mitchell, stateward bound from Chicago, N. Y. He voted for the Jones law $10,000 fine five years in jail for carrying liquor.

Britain's election, coming in May, worries Tories and British finance.

Five hundred thousand men out of work, drawing the "dole" to help them from starving, represent one uncertainty.

The flapper vote, which means young girls of 21, votes for the first time, represents another uncertainty.

Lloyd George promises to put the $50,000,000 idle to work, changing them from paper to cash, to be used to wage earnest. He plans a road building program and other public works.

This annoys the prosperous. They fear new taxes to pay wages to the unemployed.

Women, according to careful statistics, control 41 per cent of this country's wealth.

Three thousand years ago the world was ruled by a matriarchy—the mothers, children took the mother's name, women ruled.

A statistician predicts a financial matriarchy by the year 2025, with all wealth in women's hands. Men will endeavor to prevent that; many of them admit it almost a virtue to relieve women of money.

Georgia believes that no man should interfere with another's wife. W. Lawrence Shipley, young warehouse clerk, married a pretty blonde.

Hall Davis, churchman, philanthropist, noticed Mrs. Shipley killed Davis, and told the jury his home had been wrecked.

The jury said "Not guilty." The crowd, cheering, hailed Shipley on their shoulders.

You hear of wonderful things done by General Motors, General Electric, Anaconda Copper, Telcel, and Telegrams. It is pleasing to note that individual states, as well as great industrial units within them, are prosperous.

Virginia, for instance, according to the State chamber of commerce, has doubled its wealth in 15 years, making enormous strides in all directions. Bank deposits increased from $22,000,000 in 1915 to $125,000,000 in 1930; the value of Virginia's products rose from $20,000,000 to $153,000,000 in 14 years. And the state of Virginia is the story of every other state in the Union.

SAITH GIRL BATTLED CRASH, POLICE BELIEVE

BIG POSSE 7 DEAD IN SEEKING 2 PLANE WOMAN CRASHES

Brantree police, Boy Scouts, and citizen volunteers were searching woods and ponds near the town today in an effort to find Mrs. Mary Jackson, missing mother of two children.

Mrs. Johnson has been under the care of a physician and yesterday left her home in Haver, Mass., and disappeared. The authorities and her husband, John Jackson, fear she may be lost or injured.

BATTLE NEAR ON BORDER
Juarez, Chihuahua, March 30 (AP)—A government airplane was shot down and the pilot killed in a federal air raid on the revolutionary base at Juarez today, said a dispatch received at rebel headquarters here.

Douglas, Ariz., March 30—A report that a force of Mexican Indians under Gen. Ramon Yucopelo would attack the Federal garrison at Naco, Sonora, near the Arizona border line shortly after noon today, was received here this morning.

The report said Yucopelo's men had refused to fight during Holy Week, which expires at noon.

Camp fires, presumably lighted by the Indian rebels, were seen from the threatened town of Naco last night apparently about eight miles away. The Federal garrison at Naco was prepared to defend the town when the threatened attack began.

The Federal force at Naco totals 1200 men. They are entrenched outside the town.

'Somerville Terror' Dies
George Hill of Somerville, who a few weeks ago was carried on a stretcher into East Cambridge hospital, at the expense of the city, died today at the Bridgewater Hospital.

When he was apprehended by Somerville police last October he was shot in the right side and crippled. He remained at the Somerville Hospital, at the expense of the city, following his admission of guilt he was transferred to the police hospital.

It appeared for a time that the church was doomed, but rapid skilled work on the part of the firemen had the blaze under control. After an hour's hard work the firemen subdued the fire.

Identity Made Positive By New York Dentist

Springfield, March 30—Working on a theory that Frances St. John Smith, Smith College student, was thrown into the Connecticut river, a victim of foul play, State police launched an investigation today after definitely establishing that an unclad body taken from the river is that of the wealthy New York girl. Lack of clothing on the body is believed to indicate foul play in the death of the beautiful girl who disappeared from college in Northampton on Friday, the thirteenth of January, 1928.

The authorities declare that bodies have been recovered from the water, fully clad, even after a much longer period of immersion, and thus, with the finding of the body, the year-old mystery only deepened.

Positive identification of the body as that of Miss Smith was made by Dr. Carlton Woods, Pelham (N. Y.) dentist. He recognized work which he had done on the girl's teeth. He produced an old dental plate of Miss Smith and demonstrated that it fitted perfectly.

FRANCES ST. JOHN SMITH'S DENTIST POSITIVELY IDENTIFIES BODY

LONG LOST COLLEGE GIRL TO BE BURIED IN N. Y.

Lieut. Detective Manning of the state police immediately made public announcement of the dentist's report. The news was telephoned to the Smith girl's parents in New York city. Preparations were made to send the body to New York tonight for burial.

Identification of the body was made virtually positive today when Lieut. Alfred M. Dacey of the State police found among the notes of the late Detective Joseph V. Daly, leader of the search for Miss Smith, a description of her teeth which fitted exactly those of the river victim.

Broken in health by the burden of his sorrow, St. John Smith, New York broker and father of the girl, previously had telephoned from New York that he does not believe the body is that of his daughter and indicated that the girl's mother, an invalid for years, believes the same.

But the authorities believed otherwise, chiefly because a straightening band on two side teeth is of platinum as was one in the mouth of Frances Smith.

This fact eliminated all possibility that the body was that of Alice M. Corbett, another Smith College student, who disappeared on another Friday the 13th—in November, 1925—and who has never been found.

Strangely enough, Miss Corbett had a band on the same teeth, but it was of silver, as Dr. H. W. Clapp of Utica, N. Y., the Corbett family dentist, said today on the telephone. Dr. Clapp was eager to help in any way possible, saying that Alice Corbett's father was one of the most pathetic figures in the country.

Smith College undergraduates who channeled with Miss Smith were interviewed today by telephone in regard to minor details and information supplied by them helped to convince the authorities of their identification.

State Detective Manning, who is in charge of developments, promised an intensive investigation, covering in the quiet little college town of Northampton, the home of Calvin Coolidge, as soon as it was set down indisputably that the swollen river had given up the body of Frances St. John Smith.

The left foot is missing from the skeleton, but all the other bones, except the fingers of the right hand, are intact, together with the remains of ligaments and many persons called at the un-

2 Missing Teeth Back Theory of Foul Play

The fact that after a search, financed by the St. John Smith wealth in all quarters of the United States, Canada, South American and European countries, and even to the Orient, the discovery of the body was made here, only a short distance down the river from Northampton, led the authorities today to say:

"The Daily was right." Daly, who was the State detective in charge of both the Corbett and Smith cases, died nearly a year ago, convinced, after painstaking investigations and running of clues everywhere, that both girls' bodies would be found in the Connecticut river.

When the body was found at Longmeadow by two men who were hunting in search of the body of a fisherman recently drowned, Medical Examiner Jones was summoned and after examination he positively identified it as that of Frances St. John Smith.

Both he and State Detective Manning commented on the absence of clothing, thinking it very unusual in the case of a student, and stating definitely later that they could not believe it suicide.

Fridays Fatal to 2 Smith College Girls

Friday, January 13, 1928, Frances St. John Smith, freshman at Smith College, Northampton, disappeared.

Friday, twenty six months before, Friday, January 13, 1925, Alice M. Corbett of Utica, N. Y., another Smith College girl, disappeared.

Friday, March 28, 1929, workmen discovered a body believed to be that of Frances St. John Smith.

derating rooms of Ernest Byron on State st. to make inquiries, believing the body might be that of a missing wife, daughter or sister, and among these were relatives of Mary Elizabeth Lynch of this city, a grocery store bookkeeper, who disappeared in December, 1929 when she was 21 years old. No one was permitted to see the remains.

Dial. Atty. Charles Clason of Hampton county said he would not act officially until the arrival of the body.

The body was found on the east shore of the broad Connecticut in Longmeadow, a suburb of this city, on the edge of the property of the Duke of Devonshire, and only a short distance from an inlet known as Swamp Pool, where a number of bodies have been found in years past.

This fact led to the inauguration of a search in that locality today by the State police.

A suggestion of a reward came up today and information from Longmeadow, which was the central point in the worldwide hunt for Miss Smith a year ago, is that for a fee of $10,000, the reward of $10,000 for finding her alive, and $1000 for finding her dead body, has never been withdrawn.

parently supporting a theory of foul play. There were no further signs which might have indicated violence, but the first was in a condition that examination of it was practically impossible.

Less than an hour after the body had been removed to an undertaking on State st. by Maj. Thomas J. Hammond, counsel for the Smiths in searching connected with the mystery enveloping their missing daughter, viewed the remains and said it was undoubtedly the body of the Smith girl.

The men who found the body and who suggested to give the police their names were today found to be George Johnson and William MacDonald. They are employees of the Merritt, Chapman & Scott, Washington, Company, and were searching for the body of their father, they may be eligible for the reward.

SMITH GIRL'S KILLING LAID TO GANG

Frances St. John Smith, Smith College freshman, was slain by a gang and thrown into the Connecticut river, in the opinion of Morris Wolf, 40 years a member of the Boston police and now head of a private detective agency.

Recalling today his prediction of more than a year ago that the body of the Smith girl would be found in the Connecticut river, Wolf said that he is convinced that the girl was the victim of foul play.

"She was not a suicide, in my opinion. The absence of clothing on the body, the disappearance of two teeth and the general condition of the body as found, is consistent with murder," he said.

"It is my belief that she was taken to a spot close to where her body was found, slain, and stripped of her clothing by her assailants in the event the body was discovered."

"The fact that the body is not entirely decomposed or that no bones were broken, so far as may be learned at the present, indicates that her body did not travel from a point near Northampton in the river to Longmeadow, 22 miles away."

"Had the body traveled this distance it would be so braced by dropping over falls into swirling pools of water, that it would be very unlikely that it would ever be identified," he said.

The girl may have been taken to the scene of her death in an automobile and thrown into the water where her body was discovered, said Wolf.

Every conceivable means was employed in the search for Frances St. John Smith, which were distributed throughout this country and Canada.

The police circular read: "Frances St. John Smith, $10,000 reward. Missing Smith College student. (Two pictures of the girl.)"

As no motive can be found for her leaving, it is thought that she may have met with an accident.

RECALLS LOST CORBETT GIRL

Was Alice Corbett slain or kidnapped into bondage?

The mystery of her disappearance from Smith College was highly intensified by discovery of the body of Frances St. John Smith, for she has been missing three years and four months—three times as long as was Miss Smith.

The Connecticut river was searched even more thoroughly for Alice Corbett than for Miss Smith.

Not a clue was found in an intense search by Lieut. Detective Joseph V. Daley of the State police, who died last year, released until the time of his death.

Mother Appealed to Frances to Return

Smith disappeared—the probability being that her body was in the waters of the Connecticut river even then—the girl's mother sent out the following touching appeal through newspapers and radio in an effort to locate her:

"Frances, my darling, please come to father and me or send word to us here at the Hotel Northampton, or if it is easier, to Miss Hamilton and Nansan at 123. We long for the happiness of having you back and we need you and miss you so. Dearest love, Mother."

FRANCES BARED WISH TO FLEE

A desire to flee from the life surrounding her, to get away from herself and her environment and submerge her identity in the open places "where the city was full of spring," was stressed by Frances St. John Smith seven months before her disappearance.

In the June, 1927, number of The Magnet, the publication of Milton Academy from which she was about to be graduated, Miss Smith gave voice to her longings for "those distant blue hills in the early days of April."

She pointed out, however, that although her "idea was unalloyed bliss" had always been to run away, when the spring was in the air, she never could resolve upon so radical a step because of the difficulty of making sure she would receive the fullest measure of life in return.

Miss Smith, whose article was entitled "Unalloyed Bliss," explained that each time she started to run away she wavered in her purpose, deciding that her family were fond of her, and so put off the flight until "I outgrew the idea of a serious attempt."

An estimated saving of $15,000-200 under the proposed plan of a Hartford Insurance company to reward careful motorists with bonus is not available to Massachusetts motorists because of conflict with the insurance law, declares Insurance Commissioner Merton L. Brown.

The bonus would be given to those drivers with a good record for five years and would amount to a rebate of 10 percent on their liability and property insurance.

But rebating, it was pointed out by the commissioner, is forbidden on liability insurance despite the insurance companies' argument that it is a form of reinsurance premium. Property damage insurance, however, is not in the same status and may be legal, it was stated.

A Leland, foreman, was taking $750 from a bank to the plant when he and a companion were stopped 200 feet from the entrance and robbed at gunpoint.

Elkton, Md., March 30 (AP)—Mrs. Anna Mahoney, 70, and her son, Edward, 50, were burned to death at the latter's home early today.

Police believe robbers set the house on fire after first shooting the woman and her son.

Neighbors said the Mahoneys were known to keep large sums of money in the house.

STAGE AND SCREEN

WAVING THE MAGIC WAND ON MAIN ST.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

JUST what may be happening to the so-called legitimate theater is something not to be dismissed with a nod and a grin. Lately it has become a habit, when men gather at clubs, or ladies meet for tea, to speak sorrowfully of the decadent drama. While the present day fare may not match up so well with what your Uncle Warren and Aunt Emma encountered in the rollicking Nineties, there still survives an audible drama of moving humanities to tickle the ear and regale the senses. The upstart "talkies" may jostle but they haven't totally subdued the ancient art of stretching hands across the footlights.

THE LAST MONTH has brought forth at least two interesting outward manifestations of the vitality of the spoken drama. Perhaps the most important of these gestures—and it is purely local—is the apparent purpose of the theatrical property wherever it may be found. With four excellent Nicholas Young comedies functioning in the small Lenox theater, the Boston Opera House doing business, now and then, on upper Huntington ave., these valet crumblers in the spoken drama have gathered the old B. P. Keith Theater into its fold and resumed its Apollo. The fireworks will be touched off on Monday with "Luckies Girl." It is tempting bait.

It is more than evident that a high-powered "talkies" and deluxe palaces for the exhibition of cinema, either noticeable or audible, give the Mezzos, Shuberts or great cause for alarm, not even when business in some quarters might show improvement. With the acquisition of the Apollo, which served the Keith interests faithfully and well for 35 years, the Shuberts become overlords of six potentially active playhouses in the Boston drama—at least, in real estate and managerial operations.

ANOTHER highly diverting stage drama for mankind has been launched by Morris Gert. Upon more than one occasion the reliable Mr. Gert has announced his definite determination to die poor. It is said that he really enjoys being down to the last nickel. Having decided himself into assuming heavy profits from supposedly certain failure, and having set aside a tidy nest egg from more recent operations in the artistic drama, he now proposes to toss away his riches by taking over David Belasco's "Mims" and carting it out of the country. Mr. Gert's hauling tribulations with "The Miracle" are, we are told, turned out to be ordinary child's play in comparison with the transportation problems involved in a country-wide tour of "Mims." The great master himself, David Belasco, has said so. And that's authority enough for anyone.

HOWEVER, Mr. Gert means business; he may sometimes fool himself, but he has never played fast and loose with his public. It is true that he is happy only in the pinch of

The New Plays

TREMONT—"The Silver Swan," an opera. Music by H. Maurice Jaquet; book by William L. Brady and Alonso Price; lyrics by William L. Brady.

APOLLO—"Luckies Girl," a musical comedy. Music by Maurice Vain; book by Andre Barde and Maurice Vain; lyrics by Max and Nathaniel Lief.

HOLLIS-Grant Mitchell in "All the King's Men." A comedy in three acts by Fulton Oursler. May Meek is a featured player.

ST. JAMES—"It's a Boy," a comedy by William G. Fox; book by William G. Fox; music by William G. Fox.

GAVETY—"Burlesque" Girls in Blue with Ann Corio. In the supporting cast are Clyde Bates and Walter Smith.

poverty, this flirtation with the right of "Mims" may provide the necessary incentive and material for a nicely cracked back balance. In another season we all may be passing around the hat for Boston's only new play, which is being made himself the most earnestly discussed impresario of the decade. It would be better, perhaps, to reserve the lamentations. What terrifies Belasco may prove as harrowing for Gert. The lad is not lacking in resources.

WHILE the Mezzos, Shuberts hold six votes to Erlanger's trembling three in the Tuesday conventions of local theater managers, it may be well to recall that Mr. E. B. Clive, with a single stage and limited auditorium, manages much better with his drama than any of his awe inspiring, Titanic rivals in the big downtown arena. Four times this season Mr. Clive has produced a play; four times he has tasted success. And he likes it. Clive moves in his own fashion; his works represent no mighty amalgamation of 100 or 1000 templates—only just the Clive. His triumphs are artistic and by the season's record they are enduring.

WITH no more fanfare than any small time producer may claim for a new play, Mr. Clive has brought Edgar Wallace's "The Ring" to the Colley—his fourth daring venture on a receding season. This undoubtedly terminates Mr. Clive's operations for the year, though the play will run so deeply into hot weather that even the actors will beg for relief and somebody has remarked that Clive picks 'em as he sees 'em. In that case he outlives Arrus of the mythical hand eyes.

"AND A GOOD TIME WAS HAD BY ALL"

ANN CORIO is the most important Ann in Anniversary Week for the coming six days at the Gayety. She's one of "The Girls in Blue," smart burlesque.

NEW LEAD AT ST. JAMES

Harold Vermilyea, who joins the Keith St. James players Easter Monday evening as leading man in William Anthony Maguire's comedy, "It's a Boy," has had wide experience in both stock and on the legitimate stage.

Broadway sum him last in the dramatization of Hugo Walpole's novel, "The Man with Red Hair." "Anna," the play in which Judith Anderson and Lou Tellegen appeared last summer in New York, was his first play. He has followed Grant Mitchell and Wallace Edgington in leading roles. "The Tailor-Made Man" and "Capt. Appleby" were two of the plays. "Sun Up," "The Ankle," "Killer" and "The Enemy" with Ray Palmer, are some of the other plays in which he has appeared. He was a member of the London company of "The Man with Red Hair."

He has played stock leads in Indianapolis and Baltimore, and has also played with the famous summer stock company at Shrewsbury, Mass., where plays are tried, prior to full opening on Broadway.

Mr. Vermilyea enjoys light comedy roles and it is in this line that he excels. Opening Easter Monday night in "It's a Boy" he follows with the Grand Mitchell part in "The Champion," April 8.

"Close Harmony" Follows Script, Not Screen Plays

Elsie Janis is the author of the story of "Close Harmony," the all-talking, singing and musical film which stars David Rogers, Nancy Carroll and is now at the Plymouth Theater. She even presided in stock at popular prices.

Heading the Franklin Park cast are Ruth Floyd in the role of Manuela, wife of the Spanish War hero, the part played by Florence Vada in the original production; George Ward as the attaché, and Richard Brandon as Emilio. "The Command to Love" contains telling lines, spicy situations and clever comedy.

BALLROOM BERTIE

has on his Saturday night suit and his regular week-end manners. During working hours you'll find him at the ribbon counter. And since the film's called by the pet title, "Why Bother?" Colleen Moore needn't be so particular about the company she keeps. Louis Natanson is the feller. (Keith Memorial).

National Opera Returning

The National Opera Co., which comes to the Boston Opera House for a return engagement of two weeks of popular-priced opera beginning Monday, April 8, has a remarkably interesting personnel. Enough "human interest" stories could be written about its members to fill up pages of newspapers. Elizabeth Hooper, the alto-voiced German contralto, who Elizabeth Hooper sings leading roles in opera at the age of 37. With two additional years of experience behind her, Miss Goddard will appear, during the coming engagement, in the roles of Marguerite in "Faust," Micaela in "Carmen" and Nedda in "Pagliacci."

"The Command to Love" at Franklin Park This Week

Netoco Jubilee Week, March 31 to April 6, is ushered in at the Franklin Park Theater with "The Command to Love." This is the first time that this comedy of which a few weeks ago concluded a long, successful run at the Plymouth Theater, has even been presented in stock at popular prices.

Heading the Franklin Park cast are Ruth Floyd in the role of Manuela, wife of the Spanish War hero, the part played by Florence Vada in the original production; George Ward as the attaché, and Richard Brandon as Emilio. "The Command to Love" contains telling lines, spicy situations and clever comedy.

GALA WEEK IN BURLESQUE

Burlesque theaters all over the country will present gala anniversary shows next week as a part of the nationwide burlesque anniversary week. Boston's upturn burlesque theater, the Gayety, will offer "Girls in Blue," with Ann Corio, reputed to be the most beautiful girl in burlesque.

Special features will mark the anniversary entertainment, for in addition to an Ann Corio, there will be Clyde Bates, a droll and effective comic comedian, and Walter (Pop) Smith, who got his nickname from his manner of singing songs.

Abie Gore, a Hebrew comic, will assist in the fun-making, while Jack Gaskill, ingenuo, and Budde Nicholas, subterfuge, will offer some special attractive "bits" of their own. An added feature will be a series of offerings by the members of the chorus. Lew Petal, straight man, will also be expected to contribute some of the specialties which have made him popular.

Holova Gayety, jazz orchestra will actively assist the chorus girls in their various presentations, for which they will be specially coached.

Levititz at Symphony After Two Years Abroad

Miecha Levititz, returning from two years abroad, will give a concert in Symphony Hall, tomorrow afternoon. The brilliant young Russian pianist announces the following program: Organ Toccata and Fugue, by Bach-Tausig; Andante favori, and Sonata in F minor, by Beethoven; Arabesque, No. 1, by Debussy; Jeux d'Enfant, by Ravel; Scherzo Etude, by Rubenstein; Etude, by Chopin; Nocturne in C minor, Three Preludes, Etude in D flat major, Waltz in A flat, Polonaise in A flat.

Pictures-Variety

HOWARD—"Burlesque" Girls from Higgaldia, with Irving Selig and Ben Lerger. Also pictures and vaudeville.

GLOBE and CARINO—"Abie's Irish Rose" and "The Rainbow" for four days; starting Thursday.

Grish Carbo in "A Woman of Affairs," Clark and McCullough in "The Diplomat," and "Melancholy Damp."

BOWDOWN—"Weary River," with Richard Barthelmess, "Morgan's Last Ride" and "When Angels Come."

SWEET MELODIES SOAR

Car-Ron, who appears in person at the Keith-Albee next week, beginning Monday, has been hailed abroad as "The Partisan Paganini." This engagement marks his first appearance on this side of the water, for he recently completed a brilliant season at the Police Bar in Paris.

Little else Car-Ron aroused great amount of curiosity by his highly scenic manner. The name of Car-Ron has always been heavily valued when appearing on the boulevards of Paris. Only on the stage does this star unveil to the public gaze.

This concert, which has been given much comment, is telling lines, spicy situations and clever comedy.

TWO NOTABLE SCORES ARE PERFORMED

By MOSES SMITH

Boston was a metropolis of music for at least a day, inasmuch as the Symphony Hall was the scene of a performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony yesterday afternoon, while in the evening at the same place Bach's "Piano, Music A" was performed. The performance of the Ninth Symphony was given according to St. Matthew's was given. The fact that the day was Good Friday, when it is customary to perform one or another of these pieces in European cities, accounted for the coincidence. Perhaps never before in Boston have two works of such magnitude been given on a single day.

For this writer the result was something of a disappointment. Mr. Stone and his singers had given tireless preparation to the performance. But because of the rain, which was the cause of the delay, it was necessary to cut a great deal of it. He did his cutting—Oswald Gahrlowich of the Detroit Orchestra did—with a view to maintaining the dramatic continuity of the Ninth Symphony.

The performance of the Ninth Symphony by Beethoven was a rarity on a regular program of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Koussevitzky presided with his early First Symphony, which was performed. But we were scarcely prepared, especially at a subscription, unorthodox as they might be. Koussevitzky had made the score, the orchestra made up of it as they sang.

Sammy Cohen, the comic solo singer, decorated "Say It With Flowers," the stage presentation, and Ted Clure, who returns Robinson again plays the violin, and there are other features in the parts.

DAVEY LEE SUCCESSOR TO COOGAN

Little Davey Lee is the legitimate successor to Jackie Coogan. He proves as much in his new semi-animated photograph, "Benny Boy" at the Metropolitan.

Also, he is a beautiful making fun of Al Jolson singing his famous (not to say notorious) "Sonny Boy" tune. It seems as if Master Lee were being demoted by sarcastic at the singer's expense.

The only other star in "Benny Boy" who shines or acts amount to much is Edward Everett Horton. Betty Bronson, Brenda Omatene and the rest of the cast make up of it as they sing.

Sammy Cohen, the comic solo singer, decorated "Say It With Flowers," the stage presentation, and Ted Clure, who returns Robinson again plays the violin, and there are other features in the parts.

REFERENDUM IS APPROVED BY BAR COUNCIL

A referendum was being drawn up today on the question of the repeal of the prohibition amendment, to be submitted in a poll of the entire membership of the Boston Bar Association. This announcement was hailed as the opening of the greatest drive yet started in Massachusetts against the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution. The question to be voted on by the lawyers, "yes" or "no," is being drafted by former Asst. Atty-Gen. Alexander Lincoln and by President Proctor of the Boston Bar Association. The wording of the referendum will be sufficiently brief to permit its printing on a postcard, it is stated.

News of the coming poll of the Boston lawyers on the "same" came in connection with a meeting of the Constitutional Liberty League executive committee in Boston.

The taking of the poll has been approved by the Boston Bar council. The balloting will be in line with similar polls taken among lawyers in New York and Philadelphia, where each time the so-called "wet" sentiment won by large margins.

The Constitutional Liberty League, at the special meeting in the office of Charles S. Rackemann, 80 Ames building, not only gave its full approval to the proposal of the Boston Bar Association's council but formally voted to initiate proceedings for the repeal of what is known as the "Baby Volstead Act," the State's concurrent prohibition authority.

After a full discussion, the members of the executive committee of the Constitutional Liberty League decided that they would not press at this time for a repeal of the State's prohibition law, especially as the attorney-general of the State is talking of using the federal padlock law in the State courts as a more effective weapon in carrying out the law.

Montreal, Que., March 30 (AP)—A wrong telephone connection and a sobbing girlish appeal, "Come and get me, mother," today constituted the vague and only clue unearthed after a week of frantic search for Barbara Fitcher, 18, McGill University student and daughter of a prominent Westmount family.

Police said that about 9 p. m. on March 21, when Miss Fitcher disappeared, the telephone rang in the house of H. W. K. Hale, Westmount. Mrs. Hale answered and heard a sobbing voice, evidently that of a young girl, saying, "Come and get me, mother. Mrs. Hale's daughter at the time was a patient in the Montreal general hospital and, thinking it was she, Mrs. Hale asked excitedly, "Where are you?" "I don't know where I am, but come and get me, oh, come and get me," came hysterically over the phone. Then the telephone connection was lost.

THERE will be weekly outdoor boxing show at Braves Field and Fenway Park during the coming summer.

The Boston Garden has secured a lease on Braves Field, while the Arena Club has signed for the boxing rights at Fenway Park.

Matchmaker Eddie Mack of the Garden announces he will stage his shows on Monday nights, while the Arena Club says he will conduct his bouts every Thursday night. Mack and McKirdy are engaged to stage the outdoor season.

Before the Sharkey-Strilling bout at Miami Beach, it looked as though Boston would be the scene of another wrestling between the two men.

Sharkey's decisive victory over Strilling removed him from the Boston boxing situation and placed him in a spot where he will only box once during the outdoor season. That contest will be staged under the direction of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of New York and will take place in September at the Yankee Stadium.

Sharkey will oppose the winner of the Schmeling-Paulino tussle in a contest which will be for the heavyweight championship of the world. The victor will be presented with the Madison-Square trophy.

Sharkey's bout with the New York Garden calls for a guarantee of $100,000 and a 25 per cent privilege. It bars him from taking part in any bout before the title skirmish.

JUMPS IN WOMEN'S GAMES AT GARDEN

Miss Wiley, shown in this drawing by Ray Shanahan, defends her indoor high jump crown in the women's meet in the Garden tonight. Mildred, of Redville, is a member of the women's track and field team at the Amsterdam Olympics last summer. She is going well this year and will try to break the indoor jump record tonight.

EAGLES BATTLE AT FORT MONROE

Fortress Monroe, Va., March 30.—Local diamond fans will have an opportunity to watch one of the best college ball teams of the north when the soldiers' nine at Fortress Monroe stack up against Boston College at the stronghold tonight.

The Eagles from Boston worked out on the parade grounds under the direction of Hugh Duffy. The religious hit hard in batting practice. The soldiers' nine at Fortress Monroe has a good nine and is playing in mid-season form. They have had more chance to practice, and better weather than the invaders. There are a number of all-star players on the local nine and they hope to give B. C. a hard battle in both this afternoon's contest and the second game on the grounds tomorrow.

DeVito and Ganson in Bout at Grand
Wrestling will be resumed at the Grand Opera House next Thursday night when Paul Bower will present one of the best all-star cards of the year.

The feature match, Joe DeVito, sensational young Italian wrestler from Providence, will meet Jack Ganson, formerly of California, but now of South Boston.

Women in Title Tilts at Garden Tonight

By GEORGE W. GRIMM
Girl track and field stars, including numerous champions and Olympic team members, will take part tonight in the third annual women's national track and field title games in the Boston Garden.

Two hundred girls have entered in the eight championship events. Fans get an opportunity to see seven of Uncle Sam's Olympic girl performers show their skill in this meet, the most important of its kind ever held in the East.

The seven members of the Olympic team are Mildred Wiley, Rena Lee, Florence MacDonald, and Olive Hansen, all of the Boston Swimming Club; Jean Shirley of the Meadowbrook Club, Philadelphia; and Loretta McBride of the Milrose A. C. of New York.

Miss Wiley will face a half dozen or more very fast sprinters. The women's track and field team at the Amsterdam Olympics last summer. She is going well this year and will try to break the indoor jump record tonight.

Zirilli Meets Brown Monday

Frankie Zirilli, well-known South End featherweight, will be seen in action again after a year's layoff. Zirilli meets K. O. Brown of Rhode Island in a semi-final bout at New Bedford Monday night.

Red Sox Nines Tilt in Benefit Go Today

By JOE CASHMAN
Bradenton, Fla., March 30.—Red Sox regulars and Yarnall games will engage in a benefit game this afternoon.

The proceeds will go towards a fund to buy diamond equipment for Bradenton youths.

The biggest crowd of the season is expected to turn out to give the kiddies a helping hand. Incidentally, the contest will be the last between the first-stringers and subs this season. The Sox will break camp here after playing Buffalo on Monday and Tuesday and exhibition games are scheduled for every day during the week's stay in Virginia.

The Fenway outfit continues to be weak with the stick and Manager Carrigan plans to keep shifting his lineup constantly until he hits upon a combination with a punch. He doesn't expect many, if any, of his players to show much improvement at the platter before leaving here but as soon as the cooler climate of Virginia is reached, he looks for enough of his charges to start hitting to give the team a fairly respectable attack.

That is all it needs to be a pretty good club, the fielding and pitching being of the best. The final game against Indianapolis was just another proof of this. Russell and Ruffing barked great ball and were given fine support but the old Sox didn't manage when it was most needed. Ruffing pitched wonderful ball. He had the hard luck to be charged with the loss of the game when outfielder Lane of the Sox hit a home run with two down and nobody on in the final frame to break a 4 to 4 tie, but he was invaluable all the rest of the time.

He is pitching better ball right now than at any time since he joined the club, according to co-leader an authority than Bill Carrigan.

If he keeps it up, he ought to be good for 20 victories this season, providing his makes are able to make a few runs for him. The same is true of Big Ed Morris. And Russell and Ganton ought to win far more games than they have.

The punch must improve, though, if the club is to get anywhere. Manager Carrigan has given no hint as to who he will ship back to Boston when camp is broken here. He has made up his mind, however, so that nothing any of those scheduled to go away, the remaining games will change their status any.

No Amateur Boxing at St. Joe's Tonight
The St. Joseph's T. A. is not holding their annual amateur boxing tournament at Commercial Hall tonight on account of it being Easter Saturday.

The next show of the organization will be held next Saturday evening, and all classes will be open to novices.

AUTO CHASE AT NEWTON

Fleeing under a barrage of police bullets for more than eight miles, the three men were captured by officers Friday only when the stolen car in which they were riding, shot-riddled and its tires punctured, broke down on Beacon st., Newton Center.

The men described themselves as Joseph Howard, 23, of 398 Amesbury st., Jamaica Plain; Francis Keane, 22, of 2163 Washington st., Roxbury; and John Scully, 18, of 8 Auburn st., Roxbury.

The men were arraigned in Dedham and held in $1000 each for hearing next Saturday.

The chase started in Weymouth, along where the automobile race took place, when the car was spotted by Beacon st. at such a high rate of speed that the pursuing

Washington, March 30 (AP)—

Secretary Wilbur announced today that 349 permits for oil prospecting on government land had been cancelled and that 941 applicants for oil and gas permits had been called on to show cause why their

Commissioner Spivey of the land office in a report to the secretary of the Interior Department admitted the appointments to put into effect the oil conservation policies of President Hoover had just begun to function and in the next few days the "number of cases daily" would "increase very rapidly."

Secretary Wilbur said in several instances states there appeared to be "no opposition to the conservation policy." He said that "the cause couldn't find a policeman, Mr. and Mrs. August Zullo went to bed and slept for several days before reporting that Joseph J. Zullo, 35, had been shot to death in their Brooklyn home earlier today. The shooting is said to have grown out of a quarrel between the Zullo family and De Pretto. De Pretto was seeking revenge for an earlier shooting in which he was involved. Police are seeking De Pretto."

papers from the boy and handed him $2. The youngster's eyes popped out of his head.

"Are those the best pair of shoes you have?" Hall asked as he looked at the boy's feet.

He said nothing, looking back at him. He told the youngster he had enough money so that he will be able to get a real kick out of the Easter holidays. He also promised to send the boy a new set of boxing gloves.

B. LOUIE O. PARSONS
New York, March 23.
EDGAR SELWYN will direct a movie of "Eva the Fifth" his first pretentious film. He has been studying the movies from the ground up and now he has rolled up his sleeves and gone to work. He has been studying the business, studying, for he was one of the pioneer film men, having gone into the business with Samuel Goldwyn more than 12 years ago. He has also a well-known stage producer and playwright.

But the movies are different—what you will admit—and Selwyn is too wise to do a pretentious film. He will get it every day. I don't believe he will do a pretentious is too superlative when we consider that he will direct the first feature film to be shown on Broadway several seasons ago as his first important Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production.

If my informant's cause be honest, Bessie Love, Raymond Hackett,

"FLAMING Youth" put Colleen Moore on the map. It was the first picture that did not spare the younger generation. Warner Fabian made a fortune. Who was there to suspect that the young man who had been the dignified Samuel Hopkins Adams, and who was there to care? But it established one thing—Samuel Hopkins Adams was no longer noticed by the film producers, but anything Warner Fabian wrote was sure to be snatched up before the ink was dry.

ADOLPH ZUKOR sits in his office denying all these tales of romance. "Why should we merge?" he says to me, who is not even to be called the Napoleon of the films. "Paramount is getting along very nicely."

I want to believe Zukor, who is no stranger to me. He and I have known each other for many years, but also a friend. But what can I say when Nicholas Schenck so eloquently denounces the deal as the "Goldwyn-MGM merger" and then within two weeks the deal was consummated.

Both companies deny the report. Then there is another little rumor that Public Trust will take over the assets of the United Artists theaters. This, say the wiseacres, may mean a merger of Paramount and United Artists.

I repeat that Mr. Zukor said: "Paramount is not merging with any company." Yet, even in the face of my good friend's vehemence, I am sure to be surprised that a few little mergers are not being planned on the side.

ONE pleasant thing about writing a column is the fact that sooner or later our friends write to us. I hadn't heard from George George since he left the stage. He became promotion manager of the Boston-based Yvonne A. Little postmarked at San Francisco. He came to me, and George is back among us again.

"I remember," said an old dog near the back of the stage, "I was on the stage playing the male lover opposite Viola Dana, in Spitfire. She was a little kid in 'The Pocono Little Rich Girl', and later we were both starred by Metro. Isn't it true?"

By the bye, I received a letter from San Jose, Calif., taking me to task for failing to remember that Viola Dana had been a child actress.
